PROGRAM OVERVIEW

This is a three year podiatric medical and surgical program based out of a successful community hospital in the Inland Empire outside of Los Angeles. This program aims to create podiatric physicians with the clinical and surgical skills to function as independent health care providers in all aspects of lower extremity care. Surgical numbers far exceed what is required in all categories with a wide variety of foot and ankle pathology, including diabetic limb salvage, elective reconstruction and trauma. The residents are fully integrated with allopathic and osteopathic residents. Our residents receive experience working with different attendings in private practice, academic, and military-based settings as well as county hospitals, and Kaiser in Northern California. This program aims to create podiatric physicians who can think rather than simply be technicians. This is accomplished through a competency-based curriculum that includes clinical, surgical, didactic, and required research experiences.
